

Strouse to Showcase Innovative Medical Adhesive Die Cuts at MD&M West 2017

WESTMINSTER, MARYLAND – Strouse, a leader in medical tape converting and adhesive solutions announces attendance at MD&M West 2017, the world's largest MedTech event. The expo takes place February 7-9, 2017 at the Anaheim Convention Center in Anaheim, California.

Visit Strouse at booth 1084 to discuss your concepts, prototypes, current projects, and any application challenges you may be facing with our adhesive engineers.

“We are excited to be a part of this event and to educate MedTech engineers and product managers about the latest adhesive technologies that are available to them by working with a 3M Preferred Converter of 3M Medical Materials and Technologies,” said Sue Chambers, President and CEO of Strouse. “Our strong partnership with 3M allows our customers to leverage unique advantages in their products and processes, that just isn't possible with other adhesive converters.”

Strouse partners with their customers to provide innovative adhesive solutions that do more than solve a problem. With an engineering team that takes the time to understand customer challenges and processes, together they develop solutions that improve product performance, increase production rates, and help bring products to market faster. Strouse has worked with MedTech companies of all sizes from startups to billion dollar organizations on solutions including:

- Medical Device Components
- Wound Care Adhesives
- Diagnostic Test Strips
- Wearable Medical Devices
- And Much More

Strouse is a die cut adhesive manufacturer with over 25 years of industry experience. Serving the medical, automotive, military, appliance, and renewable energy industries, Strouse continues to innovate. With a quality management system currently registered to ISO 9001:2008 standards, Strouse not only has a commitment to quality but excellent customer service. A full team of design and development engineers allows Strouse to invest the necessary time and resources for each and every project. Located in Westminster, Maryland, Strouse can be contacted directly at 1-800-410-8273 or visit our website for more info at <http://www.strouse.com/>